General Information

The School of Humanities, Arts, and Public Engagement (SHAPE) consists of five (5) academic departments and is at the very heart of liberal arts education at Point Loma Nazarene University. Programs in the school focus on the arts, social sciences, and humanities, and are offered at the undergraduate (both traditional and accelerated) and graduate levels. The school's highly qualified faculty members are professionally active in their field and committed to engaging students in the learning experience. By emphasizing the university's mission to engage and challenge minds, to form and model character, and to see service as an expression of faith, SHAPE faculty challenge students to become life-long learners, to value the process of personal and intellectual development, and to give their lives in meaningful service to others.
